Carnival worker arrested and charged with rape of 13-year-old

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - While residents were enjoying the multitude of patriotic activities and carnival games and rides, something else was brewing in the woods, behind the high school. Robert Wilson, 18, of North Dighton, was arrested at 6:30 p.m.

on July 5 and was charged with rape of a child with force, indecent assault and battery on a child under 14, and statutory rape of a child. Wilson was an employee of Fiesta Shows, which operated the Fourth of July carnival activities. According to court documents,

Wilmington DPW employees observed two people in the woods adjacent to a trail that leads between the high school and Wildwood Street and reported their concern to a Wilmington Police officer on bicycle patrol. Police responded to the scene and were initially told of consensual sexual activity between a 13-year old female and an 18-year-old male. Based on those reports, Wilson was arrested for statutory rape and indecent assault and battery. Upon further interviews with the 13-year-old female victim, police added a charge of forcible rape of a child under 14.

Court documents say that the two met on July 4 when the girl was visiting the carnival with friends. She met the man, who operated a basketball free-throw game, and talked

Historical Commission gets $45k grant toward restorations

By KERRI STINSON

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Historical Commission has recently received an additional $45,000 grant to continue the process of the restoring Butters Farmhouse.

The Wilmington Historical Commission first became involved in saving the William Butters II Farmhouse, located at 165 Chestnut Street, in the spring of 2005 when Northeastern Development Corporation purchased the land with plans to demolish the structure and build a suburban subdivision.

When we realized we were going to lose the development, we went to inform the town of its importance," Carolyn Harris, the Chair of the Wilmington Historical Commission, said. "We did a number of fundraisers with the friends of the Harnden

Run from police results in fatality

WILMINGTON - Wilmington and State Police are investigating a fatal crash that occurred on Aldrich Road in Wilmington on Saturday morning at 1:45 a.m. According to Wilmington Police, a 2004 Mercury, operated by Richard Belding, age 18, of 36 Jacquith Road, Wilmington, was traveling west at a high rate of speed when it struck, head-on, a 1992 Toyota being operated by William Joyce, age 19, of Billerica.

Joyce was transported to Beth Israel Hospital in Boston by Med-Flight helicopter and Belding was sent by a second Med-Flight helicopter to Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. Mr. Joyce was subsequently pronounced dead on Saturday afternoon. Two 15-year old females from Wilmington who were in Belding's car and a 17-year old female traveling with Joyce were transported by ambulance to Lahey Clinic in Burlington with non-life threatening injuries.

The accident occurred after police attempted to stop Belding's vehicle on Aldrich Road, where he was observed driving with a suspended license. Instead of stopping, Belding took off at a high rate of speed westbound on Aldrich Road. Within seconds, according to a police statement, police came across Belding's vehicle sitting sideways in the street

Want to pay more for bottled water?

Beacon Hill wants deposits on more bottles

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Selectmen continued discussion Monday night about a Beacon Hill attempt to update the Bottle Bill. While most expressed support for the legislation, which would levy deposits on many more types of bottles, such as water, tea and juice, Chairman Mike Newhouse withheld a vote specifically supporting the legislation until hearing more from the legislative delegation.

The new bill, House 3515, will charge deposits on all beverages in liquid form excepting milk and those derived from dairy products, infant formula, and FDA-approved medicines. So a 24-pack of water bottles or sports drinks will increase in price by $1.20. Likewise, presumably, for juice-pouches kids take to school but rarely bring home to recycle. Containers charged deposits include any sealable bottle, can, jar, or carton primarily composed of glass, metal, plastic or combination thereof. It does not include containers made of paper-based biodegradables and aseptic packaging. Further, the bill establishes a "Clean Environment Fund" to programs and projects associated with recycling, composting, and solid waste reduction.

"I was looking for a reason why we would not want to support this legislation," said Selectman Mike Champoux, adding he could not find a compelling argument and citing that only 20 percent of non-deposit bottles are recycled. Increased recycling would reduce municipal solid waste and "seems on its face to be a no-brainer," finished Champoux.

Newhouse said he had the same gut reaction, but was curious that none of the local legislators had joined the 50 co-sponsors of the bill and speculated that they might be aware of more of the impacts than the municipalities.

"Is there an impact on small business that's not being advertised?" asked Newhouse. "I'm inclined to let our legislative delegation handle it and bring any opposition to our attention."

Wayman verdict: Not Guilty

One woman's odyssey through the criminal justice system

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - She found out about the indictment against her while driving on the highway, coming home after volunteering at a charity golf tournament. It was her secretary calling her cell phone, telling her to pull off the road. Her friends had been calling the office all day about an article in the Boston Globe that said she was indicted by a grand jury.

Thus began a descent into legal hell, resulting in the ruin of one woman's successful career, reputation, livelihood, and nearly robbing her of her home. In the end she was found not guilty on all charges.

The Crier met with Wayman in her Wilmington home to talk about this case and how the experience changed her life. During the conversations there were tears, but more laughter, and ultimately Wayman credits her family, friends and her attorney who stuck with her for helping her through a tremendously trying time.

The ordeal left Wayman feeling at once blessed by the strong support she received from her network and deeply cynical about the nature of America's criminal justice system. Google her name and you'll find that Boston Globe article notifying the world of her indictment, but nary a word out of 1.8-million results saying she was found not guilty.

"In this country its definitely not 'innocent until proven guilty,'" Wayman explained to the Crier. "Anybody can accuse you of anything and it's not up to them to prove you guilty, its up to you to prove your innocence."

This story is not about the minutiae of the case, which is still going through civil proceedings, but rather this woman's experience of living under a microscope and on tenterhooks for years waiting for her case to play out in court.

Sewer assessment up, but not rates

Veteran's office to move by end of summer

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority notified the town in late June that water and sewer rates will change for fiscal year 2010. The FY10 assessments reflect a combined water and sewer rate revenue increase of 3.8

percent over FY09, according to the letter sent to selectmen. That figure includes a 0.6 percent decrease in the water assessment and a 6 percent increase for sewer assessments.

Rates are rising at the MWRA in part because the authority lost $20 million in state revenue. Debt service remains the largest portion of the budget, representing 58.2 percent of the MWRA total budget. Ratepayers in member towns must make up the difference, even though the budget is a 5 percent reduction over the adopted FY09 budget and is level with the FY09 Amended budget. Wilmington will not receive a water assessment until FY11, Town manager Michael Caira told Selectmen.

For Wilmington, the MWRA sewer assessment is rising from $1.77 million for FY09 to $1.99 million for FY10, an increase of 12.3 percent and the largest increase of sewer only customers in the MWRA.

However, Caira said Wilmington ratepayers will not see an increase in sewer rates locally because the level funded sewer budget approved at town meeting does not include major capital expenditures as were spent in FY09. Thus, the account has an estimated surplus of $200,000 and will break even with this new increase in the assessment.

A move for the Veteran's Agent

The Veteran's Agent office is moving to new digs before the end of the summer. Currently tucked into a cramped office in Town Hall, the space offers little privacy for veterans and families. Caira asked for, and received, the approval of Selectmen to move the office over to the West Schoolhouse on Shawsheen Avenue.

Caira believes that housing a town department at that location is "consistent with the type of use for the West Schoolhouse envisioned by town officials and the Historical Commission at the time that extensive renovations were made to that property."

Chairman Michael Newhouse said he found the issue of privacy to be a compelling point.

It's a bird...it's a plane...it's a dog

By CHRISTINE KENNEY

TEWKSBURY - Don't be surprised to see dogs and discs flying through the air at the Tewksbury Recreational area at Livingston Street on July 25, as the 7th annual Skyhoundz Dog-Disc competition takes place.

Based out of Atlanta, Georgia, Skyhoundz is devoted to holding competitions for the mysterious sport of disc dogging, a game that involves an owner throwing a disc for his or her dog to catch and return. Former Tewksbury residents, Diane and Diane Lawyer, are the facilitators of the Tewksbury competition, inspired by their two dogs, Sadie, a 12-year old Sheltie, and Dewey, a 6-year old Corgie-mix.

"The field is 50 yards long and divided into five zones. Points are awarded when the dog catches a disc in one of the zones, and an extra half point if all four paws are off the ground," explains Diane of the rules of the competition. She went on to explain that each dog and owner team is allotted one minute per round. Two rounds are held, and the top three dogs are awarded medals at the closing of the competition.

Spectators and competitors alike are welcome to attend the event, free of cost, stressed Diane. There are no age restrictions for the competing dogs, but Diane warns that each owner must bring their dog's updated rabies certificate. All dogs must be leashed upon arrival of the competition.

"Herding breeds like Border Collies and Australian Shepherds do extremely well in the sport, but we have seen standard Poodles, Pug mixes, Labs and even toy breeds out there," she said. "And lots of mutts."

Diane expressed gratitude toward the head of the Rec Department, Roy Patterson, for helping her and her husband start up the local competition. "Roy and his staff have been great to us," she said, explaining that the staff paint the fields and set up the audio equipment for the event. Hyperflite, the manufacturer of the discs, provides the discs for free, allowing for the competition to be at no cost for its competitors.

Diane recites the order of teams through a microphone and Dave acts as head scorekeeper at the competition, but they both compete with their two pups as well. "It's as much fun for us to play as it is for them," said Diane.

Registration begins at 10:30 a.m. on game day. While competing, Diane explained, the clock will be stopped for dogs' bathroom breaks, and a hose will be available to cool down dogs, if so needed. She also said that new teams are given the chance to watch experienced competitors in order to grasp the nature of the competition.

"There aren't many places at all where you can bring kids and dogs and have a great time for a couple of hours. We love to have the folks who started out like us, just playing fetch in the back yard with their dog," Diane said.

Diane hopes for a good turnout this year, and she excitedly said, "It's always a good time!"

Dogs will be flying all through the air next weekend (July 25) at the Livingston Street recreation area, just like this athlete from the 2005 competition. C'mon down and check it out.

Tewksbury fire station closing

Firefighter concessions reduce length of South Fire Station closure

By CHARITY B. LEGVOLD

TEWKSBURY - Two weeks into the temporary closure of the South Fire Station the Board of Selectmen and the Tewksbury Fire Fighters Local 1647, International Association of Fire Fighters, revealed the agreed upon $100,000 in contract concessions that will allow the South Fire Station to close for only two months, instead of five months.

First, each member will give up $300 of his or her clothing allowance to fiscal year FY2010 for a total of $15,000.

Second, each member that is eligible for a Free Day in FY2010 agrees that they will not take it and, as stipulated in the C.B.A., it will go toward their accumulated sick time for a total of $22,000. A Free Day is an attendance incentive given once per year to any member who does not call in sick during a six-month period.

Third, each member that is eligible for a Reward Day during FY2010 agrees that they will not take any time off for money during that fiscal year for a total savings of $63,500. Each member receives up to four personal days each year if no sick time is taken.

In a reaffirmation of Article 23, the Town agrees that if any unforeseen fiscal shortfalls should occur during FY2010 that it will result in closing a sub station pursuant to Article 23 of the C.B.A. Town Manager David Cressman said this is standard contract language already in place that states, for safety reasons, this would be the first action taken by the chief of the department.

The Board of Selectmen approved this memorandum of agreement with a vote of 3 to 1 with Doug Sears opposed and Scott Wilson unavailable for the meeting.

Fire Chief Richard Mackey explained, "Our goal is to close the station for the shortest amount of time." Mackey said that he, the Deputy Chief and the four Captains all agree to this plan and that, "four of us live in South Tewksbury."

Mackey said the question that comes up again and again is "Why the South Station?" and his answer is simple. The railroad tracks isolate northern parts of Tewksbury from the rest of the town when trains come through. "It's a vulnerability issue," said Mackey who noted that the delay in emergency services to North Tewksbury while a train is crossing the area could be devastating in an emergency situation.

Summer is the season with the most overtime, so Mackey explained that it makes fiscal sense to close the station then so that if three people are absent they do not have to pay overtime to replace those three people.

Mackey also explained that it makes more sense to have an engine at the South Station instead of an ambulance for several reasons. First, there are significant advantages to having an ambulance centrally located in the town. Second, an ambulance call time could be 45 to 75 minutes because it often includes a trip to a hospital whereas the emergency personnel on an engine stabilize a patient and then return to the station when medical personnel arrive and would therefore be ready sooner for the next emergency that may arise. An engine can handle fire, emergency medical and accident scenes and Mackey believes it would be the best thing for the South Fire Station.

The Board of Selectmen approved the memorandum of agreement, but not everyone was happy about the negotiated items. "Who has a clothing allowance? Free Day? Reward Day?" exclaimed Sears. "This is what is staying in the way of your getting a fire truck or ambulance down there."

Selectman Ann Marie Stronach, on the other hand, placed the blame on herself and the community saying, "We as a community cut $300,000 out of the fire Department budget." She said the community did not want to raise revenues or fees, so now they must decide on service reductions.

"Shame on us, shame on me for not finding this out sooner," Stronach said, referring to the fact that they planned a budget and found out later that it would not be enough to maintain three stations for the entire year.

In concluding the discussion Chairman Todd Johnson explained that at the end of the day what it boils down to is a pattern of following the advice of professionals. "It would be irresponsible of me to contradict their recommendations," said Johnson, though in the end he added, "We have to, as a community, change the way we do business."

Non-union members agree to 5% pay cut

Tewksbury School Committee considers 5% cut, instead of 10%, for union members

By MATT FINN

TEWKSBURY - Non Union members have agreed to a 5% reduction in salary, without reducing workload, in an effort to bridge the $1.2 million shortfall the Town of Tewksbury is facing.

"Everybody agreed to it, so we didn't come to a point on whether or not it was voluntary or involuntary. Everybody agreed," explained Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Christine McGrath.

The cut will affect McGrath, Assistant Superintendent Lorean Bradley, Business Manager Jack Quinn, and the district's seven principals. The non-union employees will take the pay cut without receiving an equivalent work-

LOSE YOUR JOB?
HERE'S HELP

At a time when workers around the country are being laid off, the new stimulus bill offers important kinds of protection.

It adds $25 a week to every unemployment check and continues extended benefits for the long-term unemployed through the year. The first $2,400 in unemployment benefits will be tax-exempt. The bill also puts more money into food stamps for the next several years. For a family of three, the increase will work out to an extra $63 a month.

There's a new subsidy to help people who lose their health insurance when they lose their jobs, even temporarily. Individuals will be able to keep their company coverage for nine months paying only 35 percent of COBRA premiums instead of 100 percent. (The subsidy will be recaptured on tax returns from workers with very high incomes.) The employer has to pick up the remainder, but will get a tax credit for its 65-percent share.

School Committee Chairman Richard O'Neil praised the move.

"It's the right thing to the extent that we have a million-and-two shortfall coming through this past school year," O'Neil said. "We started out with a potential $2.5 million reduction. That $2.5 million reduction was offset by savings that was achieved by the town in the renegotiation of the healthcare costs." The renegotiation of both healthcare and retirement costs saved the town $1.4 million. That still leaves Tewksbury with a $1.2 million shortfall the town desperately needs to bridge.

On June 16, the School Committee voted to layoff all the teachers and to hire them back with salaries reduced by 10%. The teachers have until July 24 to decide whether to be re-hired with the pay cut. According to Anthony Blandini, Tewksbury Teachers Association (TTA) Representative, "To my knowledge few if any of them (teachers) have responded thus far."

It now appears the School Committee is willing to agree to a 5% pay cut rather than a 10% pay cut for union employees as well. School O'Neil, said,

"We have had two meetings (with the TTA), the first one was described by them as a discussion and the second was described as a chat," O'Neil said. "The TTA has indicated to us that they wanted some time to study the budget analysis and perhaps there may be more funds that come to us through some other channels, and we were not adverse to giving them that time to do that inquiry."

When asked if the 5% reduction would be in place for the 2009-2010 school year, O'Neil said, "If it is a 5% reduction then it is going to 5% over the full year. We need to achieve that reduction over the full year. But, if somebody came to us and proposed an accelerated reduction, let's say they said, 'Nah, how about we keep it at .9 and reduce the time and salary by 10%, so we will get put back on full time status by the mid year.' That is certainly an option we would entertain."

O'Neil stressed the fact that Tewksbury can't afford to lose teachers. "We have no room left to drain our teaching staff to any smaller number. We're at rock bottom."

Tewksbury has a $33 million operating budget and $25 million of that budget goes to payroll and employee benefit costs. "Of that, $25 million, $16 million, or $17 million is attributable to the teacher's bargaining unit. So 5% of that number of the teacher bargaining unit is roughly $800,000 to $900,000." That money would almost make up $1.2 million shortfall.

Tewksbury is set to receive $134,000 in stimulus funding when a lot of towns are receiving a lot more money. O'Neil opined, "At a time when many towns around us are getting several hundreds of thousands of dollars, some a million and a million and a half. And if we had those kinds of funds, clearly we could recall all of our teaching staff without cuts."

Many teachers are not happy and many feel it is unrealistic and unfair for the town and politicians to expect that their public employees subsidize the town for what many believe are, in part, mis-management issues.

Blandini stated in response to the pay cut, "The Tewksbury Teachers Association is on record that the 10% unilateral decision to cut teachers workload and salaries is illegal, and therefore is not negotiable. Reportedly, the School Committee has revised its 10% to 5% reduction. Whether it is a 10%, 5% or 1%, the Association's (TTA) position is that it is illegal."

"The teachers have a Collective Bargaining Agreement in effect through August 31, 2010," Blandini said. "We expect that the School Committee respect our contract and rescind its unilateral, unethical and illegal, reduction scheme."

The TTA had this to say about the meetings that took place with School Committee Officials, "Yes, it is true that the Association has met with the School Committee Sub-Committee to discuss its budget shortfall. These meetings and any future meeting(s) in our view are not bargaining sessions, but only an exchange of ideas."

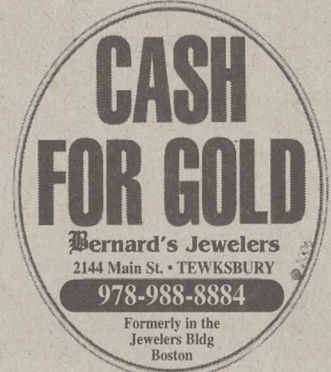

The TTA, with the assistance of the Mass. Teachers Association (MTA), has filed several documents, legal and otherwise, in order to pursue legal action against the School Committee's decision on the pay cut. The Association intends to "aggressively" prevent the Committee's reduction plan, which many feel impacts staff morale, student safety, and instruction.

Blandini stated, "There are alternatives that the Committee can review in order to meet its alleged $1.3 budget shortfall. For example, the Committee can consolidate salaries if it consolidated Administrative positions. It also should revisit several of the Superintendent's recommended options for reducing the budget. What's more, although unpopular with townspeople, but implemented in many surrounding communities, a bus transportation fee will raise revenues for now and in the future, if needed."

The TTA was scheduled for roughly around a 4% increase for the 2009-2010. When asked, with the 5% pay cut, would teachers be making roughly around the same as last year, Blandini had this to say, "In regard to your question, as negotiated, the teachers and Committee bargained a 2%-2% split raise for 2009-2010. This computes to a 3% in-pocket raise. It should be noted that in 2005-2006 the teachers agreed to a '0' raise, also, during this cycle, the teachers, along with the other nine unions agreed to change health plans, which saved the town over $500,000."

"Most people agree that Tewksbury must raise more revenues for the future in order to keep up with increasing costs," said Blandini.

The next School Committee Meeting is on the July 22.

Books are ready to pick

WILMINGTON - No need to wait for the weather, there is always something ready to be read at the Friends of the Library's Book Store Next Door, 183 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington, MA. After two glorious weekends, reading may not be the activity of the moment, but you never know what will be on the shelves from week to week, so the Book Store Next Door is always worth at least a quick visit. Remember those New Year's Resolutions? You might find something to help you regain momentum.

The Book Store Next Door keeps adding non-fiction sections as our donations dictate so check out the New England shelf, or natural sciences. There are three plus rooms stocked full of short stories, poetry, fiction, sci-fi, non-fiction, kids' of all ages, and do not forget the CDs, DVDs and classic videos. The library is closed during the summer on Saturdays, but the bookstore is open on Saturdays from 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., Sundays from 12:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m., and Wednesday evenings 4:00 p.m. - 7:00 p.m. Your dollars spent here are returned to the library in many forms and the hourly trade off is phenomenal even if you are not a speed-reader.

Be sure to check in at the library to see other ways you can benefit from programs sponsored by the Friends. Many thanks for your continued support shopping and donating. Contact Leslie Dietrich, (978)-657-6536 or lesd4@verizon.net for volunteer opportunities or questions.

WILMINGTON - UniFirst Corporation celebrated its eighth Annual Founder's Day on at its corporate offices in Wilmington, MA on July 10, as well as at more than 200 other locations throughout the United States and Canada.

Founder's Day honors the memory of the late Aldo Croatti, who started the company on July 12, 1936 and grew it to become the industry leader it is today. The celebration is held on the Friday closest to that historic date each year and has been an annual event since Mr. Croatti's passing in 2001.

UniFirst, which today has nearly 300 employees at its corporate office and nearly 10,000 employees throughout North America, is a leading supplier of uniforms and

Aldo Croatti's son and current UniFirst President and CEO, Ronald Croatti, noted that there were modern day lessons to be learned from his father's perseverance and strong work ethic. "These are times like we've never seen before and we need to pull together with an extraordinary effort," Aldo said. "Together we will come out of these troubling economic times even stronger than before."

During the day's festivities, UniFirst honored its corporate Employee of the Year, Susan Zielinski, a member of the company's Information Technology department who has been with the company the company's 2009-2010 calendar. Olivia is the daughter of Carrie Bertolino who

Also being recognized was 10-year-old Olivia Bertolino whose drawing was among those selected for inclusion in

The special guest of honor at the event was Anthony DiFillippo who worked with Aldo Croatti during the company's formative years and ultimately served as its president before retiring in the mid-1990s.

Public invited to Abundant Life Christian Center

Family movie nights

Abundant Life Christian Center will be bringing two family friendly movies to their big screen. The Velveteen Rabbit will be presented on Tuesday, July 21 and Charlotte's Web will show on August 11, both at 7 p.m.

The Velveteen Rabbit is inspired by Margery Williams' classic tale. Toby Morgan is a young boy who feels the loneliness of his increasingly distant father and strict grandmother. His discovery of the "magic attic" offers a safe haven where he finds a stuffed rabbit to play with. His tears transform the rabbit into an animated playmate and the adventures begin! Rabbit's one wish is to become real and Toby's wish is to have a happy family again. Through the transforming power of love both wishes come true in this heart warming tale that will captivate the entire family!

The voices of Golden Globe winner Jane Seymour, Emmy winner Tom Skerritt and Academy Award winner Ellen Burstyn are featured.

Dakota Fanning stars as Fern in the live action adaptation of Charlotte's Web. Fern and Charlotte, the spider, are the only two living beings who see that Wilbur is a "terrific" and "radiant" pig. When word gets out that Wilbur's days are numbered, it looks like it will take a miracle to save his life in this classic story of loyalty, trust and sacrifice.

Everyone is welcome to come and enjoy these wonderful films in air conditioned comfort. Admission is free and complimentary refreshments will be served. For more information contact (978) 658-8584 or ablifetchurch.org.

MassDEP inspection sweep finds numerous violations of waste bans;

Notices issued to three Wilmington businesses

Greater efforts needed in the recycling of paper, cardboard, metals and electronics

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP) issued 78 notices of non-compliance this month after a statewide inspection sweep found widespread violations involving the improper disposal of significant amounts of recyclable and recoverable materials, such as paper, cardboard, televisions and computers.

The list of violators, including three Wilmington businesses, covers a wide spectrum of public and private institutions, the food and retail sectors, as well as educational and medical facilities.

"It's time for all of us to step up and play a bigger role in improving our recycling rate. When we increase recycling, we better protect the environment, create more green jobs, reduce our energy consumption and improve our economic competitiveness," said

MassDEP Commissioner Laurie Burt. "Today's enforcement actions are a wake-up call, reminding waste generators and businesses of their obligations. MassDEP stands ready to help them achieve a more successful recycling program."

The list of materials included in the state's waste bans include materials such as: paper, glass, plastic, metal containers, electronics, leaves, and wood wastes. The entire list and further descriptions can be found at: www.mass.gov/dep/recycle/laws/policies.htm#bans.

Waste bans have benefited the environment and the Commonwealth by helping stimulate the market for recyclable materials, preserving the state's limited disposal capacity, conserving natural resources and reducing harmful greenhouse gas emissions. The list of waste-ban materials has grown since the initial list was adopted in 1991.

MassDEP encourages businesses to follow the letter of the law when it comes to recycling. Businesses typically receive a notice of non-compliance if inspectors discover that recyclable materials are improperly being sent for disposal. The violators are required to correct the problem. But if waste ban violations continue, further enforcement action may result.

While Massachusetts recycles 44 percent of the waste generated here, that rate has declined slightly during the past few years and is well short of the Commonwealth's goal of achieving a 56 percent recycling rate by 2010. Millions of tons of recyclable commodities continue to be disposed of in Massachusetts each year, demonstrating the need for more state oversight of the waste bans.

During public sessions on the state's solid waste master plan held over the last year, MassDEP has repeatedly heard of the need for increased enforcement of the disposal bans. In response, the agency has sent dozens of inspectors to solid waste facilities over the last several months to monitor disposal ban compliance in its effort to understand the obstacles preventing the Commonwealth from achieving a higher rate of recycling.

Inspectors observed 1,358 solid waste loads being delivered for disposal, and found the following companies warranted written notices due to the excessive amounts of banned materials that could have been re-used, diverted from disposal, or otherwise recycled:

Konica Minolta Business Systems, Wilmington
Progressive Gourmet, Wilmington

Xpedx, Wilmington
Businesses that receive a notice of non-compliance are required to respond to MassDEP with their plan of action to stop the disposal of banned materials.

Businesses that are looking for assistance with managing their waste materials, whether through re-use outlets, commodity brokers or recycling service providers, can find information at the following MassDEP web site: <http://www.mass.gov/dep/reduce/reduce/assistan.htm>
MassDEP is responsible for ensuring clean air and water, safe management and recycling of solid and hazardous wastes, timely cleanup of hazardous waste sites and spills, and the preservation of wetlands and coastal resources.

Wilmington resident turns "35"

In a time when Americans are demanding a government that is lean, effective and efficient, Mark Persson is doing his part.

Persson of Wilmington was recently heralded for his 35 years of government service by the U.S. Postal Service.

As a postal labor relations manager in North Reading, Persson oversees many of the Massachusetts offices. He has also worked as a clerk, supervisor, tour superintendent, manager of Distribution Operations and a labor relations specialist.

"I've been in the Postal Service since I've been 21 years old," he said. "It's been a wonderful experience throughout my entire career. I've been given the opportunity to advance through the organization and have met many wonderful people during the years."

Human Resources Manager Kathie Shanahan recognized Persson in front of coworkers at the Post Office and gave him a letter which said, "The good reputation enjoyed by the Postal Service is based upon the loyal service of people like you, and I am proud to commend you for your contribution."

Sartoris, who lives in Wilmington, will attend Northeastern University in the Fall. The Comcast Leaders and Achievers Scholarship Program, one of the Comcast Foundation's signature community investment programs, annually recognizes students who have shown leadership skills, academic achievement and a commitment to community service.

"Each year, we are excited to provide Leaders and Achievers scholarships to talented students like Corinne who demonstrate leadership in school activities and a strong commitment to community service," said Steve Hackley, Senior Vice President for Comcast's Greater Boston Region. "Given the economic uncertainty facing families across Massachusetts and our nation, this year's awards take on even greater significance and we are proud to participate in a small way to help these future leaders power their dreams for success."

A commitment to community service is an essential component in the selection of Comcast Leaders and Achievers Scholarship recipients. Sartoris and all of this year's honorees are catalysts for positive change in their communities and schools, participating in a wide variety of community service activities. Sartoris's community service work has included starting the arts and crafts program at a local assisted living facility and participating in the American Cancer

Society's Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk.

Nationally, 1,879 high school seniors received $1,000 Comcast Leaders and Achievers Scholarships this year, including 170 from New England. In the nine years since the program began, Comcast has awarded $11 million in college aid to 11,000 scholarship winners.

Each year, Comcast works with high school principals, guidance counselors and school administrators to select the scholarship recipients. The program is overseen by International Scholarship and Tuition Services, Inc., an independent firm that specializes in managing sponsored scholarship programs.

Donna Wayman was a successful real estate agent for thirty-three years. She purchased her first real estate franchise in 1985 when she was 25. She later purchased a national real estate franchise, but after five years scaled back from the national chain preferring personal service to expansion and the management of a large staff.

Seven years ago Wayman's septuagenarian parents came to live with her. Having a contractor's license, she built a family suite onto her home. Friends of hers commented on the quality and design of the suite and engaged her to renovate and add space onto their home.

What started out as a business proposition between friends ended badly in the fall of 2005, with an unfinished house, unhappy homeowners, and Wayman unpaid. Wayman began a process of working out the issues with the homeowners, including arbitration, beginning in the fall of 2005. The homeowners succeeded in having her remodeler's license suspended and later sued her under consumer protection laws. Then, in May 2007, while she was in Bermuda for a Rotary conference, a hearing was held in her absence putting a $400,000 attachment on her home.

That attachment meant that if she sold her home the proceeds would be held by the court. Further, she could not refinance her mortgage or get her hands on her equity, a source of cash entirely shut off to her during the uphill legal climb she faced.

A dedicated member of Rotary International, Wayman was elected District Governor in 2006 and it was a 2007 Rotary golf tournament in New Hampshire she was leaving when she first learned of her indictment. The call from her secretary prompted her to get off the highway and pull into a grocery store parking lot.

"I felt numb at first, felt like I was hearing the story about another person."

Wayman went to a friend's house, too upset to drive home. At first she did not know if police would be waiting for her when she went home with an arrest warrant. Her questions were answered weeks later when she finally received the notice in the mail and given an arraignment date in November. She was indicted on two charges, abandoning the property and failure to pay a subcontractor.

"I was like, is this how everybody finds out they were indicted? By reading it in a newspaper?" she asked incredulously.

After the indictment appeared in the newspapers in September 2007 her phone became very quiet as business dried up. She contacted her real estate clients and all but two decided to find new agents. Her parents would go to the grocery store and see the finger pointing and whispers, about their daughter. Yet, she was overwhelmed by calls from friends offering to be character witnesses.

"Your whole life changes," Wayman says, tapping her water glass. Without her business income and no way to tap into the equity in her home, Wayman was largely left without a way to support herself.

The arraignment became an even more humbling moment. Though she was summoned to the arraignment through the mail, Wayman faced a judge along with others who were brought into court in shackles and handcuffs. She pleaded not guilty and was released on her own recognizance though she had to endure pre-trial probation, surrender her passport, and not leave the state.

"At that point you know who your friends are: who pulls away and who comes over to sit with you," said Wayman, who credits her strong faith and friends with pulling her through.

One friend in particular that stood by her was her attorney, Frank Ingram, someone she had known originally through Rotary. Ingram took up her cause and guided her through the courts, without regard to her financial straits.

"He went over and above and I will be appreciative of that for the rest of my life. I could never have done this without him."

With no income and no way to access the equity in her home, a good friend offered her a temporary job at a retail store, but in New Hampshire. Wayman had difficulties getting permission from her probation officer and ended up having to go to court in order to work at a job that put food on the table and gas in her car. A job she is grateful to have and which gave her much time off during the busy holiday season to go to court for her trial. In a land where freedom is too often taken for granted, Wayman had to carry a travel permit in order to work and fax her work hours to her probation officer every week.

During this period her home went into foreclosure twice. Her gas was shut off for six weeks. She cut back her grocery and clothing budgets sharply. Wayman was humbled by the generosity of friends and family that found out and helped her.

"It's amazing the things you realize you can live without. Pride gets in the way of a lot of things, but it doesn't weaken you to need help."

July 2008 Wayman was declared indigent by the courts, a deflating moment throughout the ordeal for this self-sufficient, successful woman who spent considerable time reaching out to help those less fortunate than herself. Yet, through that declaration she could receive a court construction consultant and a private detective to aid her case.

"That was a hard day for me," Wayman said simply, not elaborating.

She has looked for work since the trial ended and tried to get her real estate business back, to little avail. Potential employers and clients see the same Google search results.

Many people do not know that defendants are not allowed to argue against the accusations before the grand jury decides to issue an indictment. Grand juries examine evidence and typically work in secret without judges, defendants, or criminal defense attorneys present. Once a grand jury returns an indictment, law enforcement can apprehend the suspect and begin the criminal justice process. Too often people misunderstand indictments as the outcome of the process, rather than a beginning. Wayman used to as well.

Soon the settlement offers from the district attorney came in, bringing with them less risk for Wayman along with an admission of guilt and in exchange for her testifying against a former business partner. She rejected every offer, even though the District Attorney kept delaying the trial while seeking a settlement.

"I said, I'm not settling because if I settle people will think I did it," said Wayman, explaining why she insisted on going forward.

She waived her right to a jury trial, opting instead to have a judge decide her case. The trial began December 19, the Friday before Christmas. Wayman brought her support.

"I have a group of super special friends," who sat with her parents. The trial lasted from 9:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. daily, though it didn't meet everyday. Finally, on Christmas Eve, Wayman was found not guilty of the first charge of abandoning a property. On December 30, Wayman went back before the judge to hear his ruling on the second charge, failure to pay a subcontractor.

"I won't forget the feeling of standing there, wondering what's going to happen to my life now that it's in someone else's hands," remembers Wayman. "But I knew I told the truth and I felt good about it."

The second not guilty verdict brought tears to her eyes and those of her supporters in the courtroom that day.

"I'm very blessed. I went through a nightmare. I am blessed with the friends and people I have in my life, who went over and above to help me," said Wayman.

"I find myself looking at things differently now. Before I didn't realize I was as judgmental; I believed the news. With me, it was guilty until proven innocent," said Wayman. "We get told that we have the best legal system in the world so therefore we believe when someone gets indicted that they did it."

Wayman has had people talk to her since the trial ended in December who know it was over but believed she was found guilty. Her experience speaks to the power of the news media and those who want to use it to destroy a person's life.

Going forward Wayman still has civil proceedings to attend to, but is relieved that she was cleared of the criminal charges.

"I'm trying to build my life back up and trying to get on with my life; and maybe it's not in real estate, but that's my focus right now as a 33 year professional," said Wayman. "I am trying to pick up the pieces, finalize the other stuff, and go forward. I'm stronger. Going through something like this definitely puts things into perspective about what is important, and what's not."

that he is "adamantly opposed" to expanding the scope of the bottle bill. Miceli referenced the initial need for the bill, saying, "There was litter everywhere; broken beer bottles and soda cans." But today, he views the new bottle bill as another way to get into the pocket of taxpayers.

"This will cause irreparable harm," said Miceli. "It's a tax and people can't afford it. There's a lot of recycling going on now and you can drive through the streets and very rarely do you see a water bottle or a juice bottle."

When the bottle bill was passed in 1982, municipalities did not offer curbside recycling and thus, residents were encouraged to bring their bottles to local redemption centers to obtain their deposits. Today, according to the Massachusetts

Department of Environmental Protection, curbside recycling is available in nearly every community in the Commonwealth.

According to MassRecycle the state currently receives over $37 million per year in unclaimed deposits. It is expected that updating the Bottle Bill will generate an additional $15-20 million in revenue. Unclaimed deposits go directly to the state's general fund.

Currently, all the bottles proposed for deposits may be recycled through curbside programs. Proponents of the bill argue that expanding the deposits to bottles typically consumed away from home, like sports drinks, will encourage people to hold onto the bottles and recycle them rather than placing them into the waste stream.

Massachusetts is one of eleven states with bottle bills.

with him several times on the 4th and again on the 5th. She told police that she informed Wilson of her age and in turn, he told her he was 15.

Police documents allege that Wilson invited the girl for a "walk" while taking a break and the two engaged in oral sex in the woods, following which Wilson forced intercourse. Afterwards he gave the female advice on birth control, telling her to get the 'morning-after' pill.

Police documents show that Wilson told police that there was a misunderstanding, but decline to speak without an attorney present.

Court documents do not indicate the name or any identifying information of the victim due to her age.

Wilson was released on $1,000 cash bail and is not to have any contact with children under 16 excluding his siblings. He is due back in court August 7 for a pre-trial conference, according to Middlesex District Attorney spokesman Corey Welford. Conviction on any of the charges will require that Wilson register as a sex offender.

Fiesta Shows was required to provide an accurate list of all carnival employees to Wilmington Police in order to secure a contract with Wilmington's Fourth of July Committee. Police did conduct background checks on each employee.

"From our background check (on Wilson), there was nothing, no previous incidents in any way related to what has been alleged," said Wilmington Police Chief Michael Begonis.

Begonis praised the alert DPW workers who notified police of suspicious activity.

"Our Town employees are a great asset to the police department," Begonis said. "These folks do a lot of great things and they truly have the pulse of the town. They are under the radar and people don't often notice them, unless to criticize. They, on the other hand, see everything and they let us know immediately when something doesn't seem right. They are a tremendous group."

with heavy front-end damage.

The two juvenile female passengers were exiting the car as police arrived, but Belding was entrapped in the front driver's seat. It was about two minutes later that police were advised by a nearby resident that a second vehicle was involved and on its side on his front lawn. The impact of the crash had sent Joyce's vehicle backward through a post-and-rail fence and into the neighboring yard.

Wilmington firefighters worked to extricate both drivers from their vehicles before they were transported by ambulance to the helicopter landing zone at the Shawsheen School.

Police will be citing Belding with: motor vehicle homicide involving reckless operation, reckless operation of a motor vehicle, operating with a suspended driver's license, failure to stop for a police officer, speeding, and failure to stay within marked lanes.

Tavern and the Wilmington minutemen as well as creating a historical calendar."

The developer, when made aware of the historic significance, agreed to sell the house and parcel back to the town for what he had paid for it.

While the fundraising assisted in raising some money, it was not close enough to what the Wilmington Historical Commission needed to purchase Butters Farmhouse. Then, Wilmington Historical Commission went to town meeting to plead their case.

William Butter II built the Butters Farmhouse in 1682 and it is important part of history since it is the second oldest building in the town of Wilmington. Also, the first Baldwin Apple, originally known as the Butters Apple, was found on the Butters Farmhouse property.

The Butters Farmhouse is also part of the Burlington, North Woburn and Wilmington Local Industrial Heritage Trail. "The ability to preserve something from that era is so important, because we have already lost a lot of good buildings to demolition," Representative James Miceli said.

At Town Meeting, on April 22, 2006, the town voted overwhelmingly - 225 to 8 - to purchase the Butters Farmhouse. Later on, in 2006, the state legislature appropriated the funds to purchase the Butters Farmhouse, thereby lifting the financial burden from the town.

"We were very thankful for Representative Charles Murphy, State senator Bruce Tarr and Representative Miceli for getting a line item grant from the state legislature of $450,000 in 2006," Harris said. "We rely on the support of our representatives to get things done during this time of economic downfall to hold onto these landmarks."

In November 2006, Governor Mitt Romney utilized his 9c powers to cut $425 million from the budget for the fiscal year of 2007, which caused setbacks for several projects - including Butters Farmhouse. However, once Governor Deval Patrick took office, he reinstated all the previous funding that had been cut from the budget.

Miceli wrote a lengthy letter on behalf of the Wilmington Historical Commission, and advocated for the Wilmington Historical Commission to receive the grant.

"Carolyn Harris is very much responsible for bringing everyone's attention to this project. She is always in the forefront and she gets a lot of heat for it," Miceli said. "I want to work with her, because she has done a great job."

The overall goal is to continue to obtain money for the project every year until the project is finished. "The town has been very helpful shoring things up and doing the best they can to hold onto the property until the construction work can be done," Harris said.

In the future, Harris hopes to have Butters Farmhouse open to the public a few days out of the year to allow people who want to see the historical integrity of the building to come and visit it.

The house has been inhabited by families for over 300 years, and right up until the town of Wilmington took possession in 2006 in order to begin restoring it. "Our goal is to have another family live in the house, but we have not determined yet how we will go about accomplishing it," Harris said.

"Right now, we are in the process of finding other types of grants that are available nationwide that we can apply for, such as other preservation grants," Harris said. Currently, the Wilmington Historical Commission is working on having the archeological study done to determine how to stabilize and protect the building.

The archeological study is an important part of the process of restoring the house, because it is vital to make sure there is nothing of archeological interest before restoration begins.

Also, the architect has to make detailed plans of the work that is going to be done on the house and submit it to the Massachusetts Historical Commission.

For this particular project, Terry McDermott, the curator of the Wilmington Town Museum at the Col. Joshua Harnden Tavern, is the primary contact person. McDermott described herself as the representative for the town, or the local project coordinator.

She is responsible for making sure the architects, the contractors, the legislature, people from the town of Wilmington and anyone else who is involved is communicating with one another as well as receiving up to date information on the status of the project.

McDermott takes care of all the paperwork for the project, sends invoices to the Massachusetts Historical Commission and documents the process by taking photographs before, during, and after the project is complete.

"In the end with the help of the architect, I will have to do a completion report, which is to be submitted to the Massachusetts Historical Commission, that will explain what was done and how the grant money was used improve the house," McDermott said.

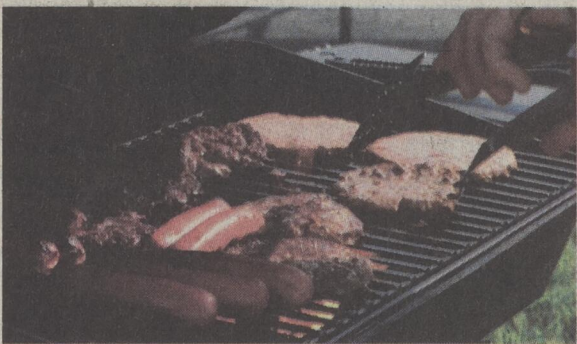

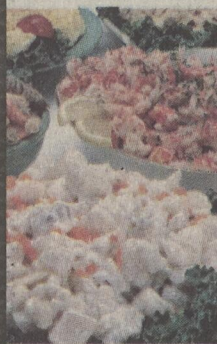

While the entire restoration process is lengthy, all of the grant money that has been received needs to be used by the end of the fiscal year, which is by June 2010.

Even though it may take several years to finish the project and accomplish several of the goals that the Wilmington Historical Commission wishes to complete, Miceli put it best when he said, "We have saved it. We got it, and it is a work in progress."

WHS incoming senior competes at Bay State Games

Hollenbeck's perserverance pays off

By LOU CIMAGLIA
Sports Correspondent

Amanda Hollenbeck's love for volleyball is taking her to many places.

The soon to be Wilmington High School senior recently competed in the Bay State games for the Northeast volleyball team. The seventeen year old was a versatile member of her team, comprised of 12 girls who reside on and around the North Shore.

"I love volleyball," said Hollenbeck. "We had a great coach and it was awesome to be a part of the team."

Hollenbeck was not a lock for this team, however. Her hard work and perseverance earned her a spot on the very competitive club.

"Amanda tried out last year and didn't make the cut," said her Bay State coach Steve Boyle. "She was one of the last cuts. We have over 30 girls try out each year, it's a tough team to make. (Amanda) was very dedicated in terms of what she wanted to do with this team."

Hollenbeck was asked about the difference of her play from last year to this year.

"I had a whole other year under my belt," said Hollenbeck. "I played a club season for North Shore and I played a lot more positions. I was trying to be more versatile, so instead of just trying out as a setter, I could play right side, outside, other places."

Boyle said Hollenbeck's positional flexibility definitely made a difference.

"She definitely improved on her volleyball skills," said Boyle. "Her jumping improved, and she became much more consistent. And I could use her in multiple roles, and since she played in so many different positions she was very comfortable practicing in many roles, right side, offsetter, serve reception, multifaceted."

The Northeast team performed well in the Bay State Games. The squad made it to the semifinal round before being bounced by the team from Central Massachusetts, finishing the tourney in fourth place.

"The parity was very good," said Boyle, who used to coach Salem State for 15 years and was an athlete himself in the Bay State Games up until just a few years ago. "The games we lost were still very competitive."

When asked about the competition compared to Cape Ann League competition, Hollenbeck did not hesitate.

"The competition is much higher," she said. "Most of the girls in the Bay State Games play high school, but this is the highest level I've played in. All the girls want to be there so much. At the high school you don't have to pay to play. And everyone is pushing so hard to make (the Bay State team). Everyone wants to be that much better than the person next to them."

As for high school, Hollenbeck is optimistic about her upcoming senior season.

"We had a good deal of seniors last year, but we still have a good deal of seniors this year," said Hollenbeck. "Some girls are doing stuff in the offseason, so hopefully we will have even more wins than last year."

Hollenbeck herself will be attending the Bentley Elite Volleyball Camp later in July, as well as playing for her club team. And while Hollenbeck continues to sharpen her skills on the court, Boyle was very impressed with another aspect of her game.

"She has great intangibles," said Boyle. "She is a very coachable athlete. And even better than her skills is her determination towards the Bay State Games. She tries very hard to assimilate. I love having her on the team."

Amanda Hollenbeck, who will be a senior this fall at WHS, participated in the Bay State Games on the Northeast Volleyball team with great success. She is also a member of the WHS varsity team. (photo by JoeBrownphotos.com).

"It should be a great game, as Tewksbury has an excellent team and we're fighting for a playoff spot," said Wilmington Northeast Coach Steve Mello, who is in his first season coaching the team. "Wilmington-Tewksbury are a great rivalry and both teams will be ready to play."

in the league. They have a really strong team and are loaded with great players. We are looking forward to playing them."

Mello, who has coached various sports over the last decade, including Wilmington Pop Warner for seven years, added that he has enjoyed coaching the Northeast team this season.

"I really like this league and I like coaching in the summer as it's a little bit more relaxed than high school varsity," said Mello, who graduated from Reading High School and went on to major in Physical Education at the University of Maine. "I also like that every player has the opportunity to play. This league gives chances to the kids to work on some stuff they don't have time to work on throughout the year."

Maj. League All-Stars

After dropping a 6 to 1 decision to Wakefield Friday night, the Wilmington Major League All-Stars bounced back with a 6 to 2 victory over Woburn in the District 13 tournament Play.

Zach Abbott pitched a complete game for Wilmington. Both Jamie Hill and Devin Fields came up with a two-out, two RBI hit along with Jimmy Davey's long home run to pace the Wilmington Attack. Wilmington's solid defense, including a spectacular play from Zach Maletesta in center field, proved too tough all day for Woburn.

On Monday night, the Wilmington squad lost to the Wakefield American All-Stars 7-4 to even their record at 2-2. If the Wildcats had won, they would have advanced to the District Semi-Finals. With the loss, Wilmington now has to wait to see their fate.

The Wakefield Americans played the Woburn Americans today. The Woburn Americans would need to win by more than six runs for Wilmington to win the tie-breaker and advance. If Woburn loses, the season is over for the Wildcats.

It seemed like Wilmington was going to beat Wakefield on Monday night. The Wildcats were leading 4-1 in the third inning, but Wakefield proved to be the better team during the last few innings of the game.

Jackson Gillis pitched five innings for Wilmington, and Jimmy Davey drove in all four runs for the Wildcats, including a two-run homer. Corey Stillings was the defensive standout as he turned a great double-play.

The roster for the Wilmington Major League All-Stars includes: Corey Stillings, Jimmy Davey, Zach Maletesta, Eli Jennings, Devin Field, Jamey Hill, Zach Abbott, Pete Daley, Jackson Gillis, Matt Penny, Evan Raffi, Chris Satori and Kevin Keane.

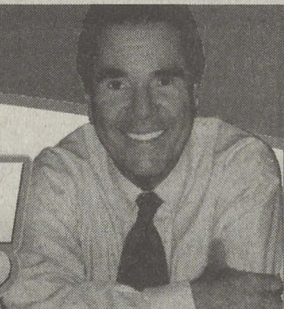

To left, Chris Frissore and above Mike Gracia, both takes cuts during Sunday's annual Home Run Derby competition sponsored by Wilmington Little League.

Under 14 Softball team doubles up on Medford

Wilmington 8, Medford 4

After Wednesday's game against Amesbury was rained out, the skies cleared on Thursday and the U14 Wilmington Wildcats softball team headed down to Medford for a night game under the lights against the Blue Devils at Columbus Park.

Wilmington struck early, scoring four runs in the first inning. Jackie Kennedy led off with a single to left, Kim Woods was hit by a pitch and Charlene Sullivan walked to load the bases. A fielder's choice scored one run before Lauren McKenna drove in another with a single. An error allowed two more runs to cross the plate and the Wildcats were up 4-0.

Medford scored one in the bottom of the first and then Wilmington struck again in the third inning, scoring three. Danielle Reynolds singled, moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Kennedy, advanced to third on a passed ball and finally scored on a wild pitch. Three consecutive walks to Woods, Sullivan, and Alyssa Cappuccio loaded the bases for McKenna. She delivered again with another single, driving in two runs. The Wildcats would score again in the 5th when Sullivan drove home Casey Murray. The Blue Devils scored single runs in the third, fifth and sixth but never got the big inning they needed.

McKenna led the offense with three hits, three RBI and two stolen bases. Murray and Reynolds each had two hits. Kennedy, Woods, and Sullivan had the other three Wilmington hits. Strong defensive plays were turned in by Kennedy at shortstop going back on a shallow fly in the third, Caitlin Cheney turning a double play in the sixth by catching a fly ball to right and firing to Megan Howland at first base to double up the runner, and Murray in the seventh when she hustled in on a grounder to right field and threw to McKenna at first base for the out. Kelsey Mangan also played a strong game at second base.

Although Wilmington doubled up on the runs scored, the game seemed a lot closer. Each team had ten hits and Wilmington left 12 runners on, while Medford left eleven. The difference was the steady pitching the Wildcats got from Sullivan and Casey MacDonald. Sullivan started and in her four innings she gave up four hits, walked none and struck out five Blue Devils. MacDonald walked only three and she forced Medford to strand six runners, including leaving the bases loaded in the 5th. She fielded the last out on a quick grounder back to the mound, leaving two more runners on and ending the game.

The win leaves Wilmington with a 2-1 record. With three rainouts, there'll be plenty of make-up games at the end of the month. This week Wilmington hosts Amesbury on Monday at the West and travels to Tewksbury on Tuesday.

Moving mountains

Reading's Ann Fisher is hiking the White Mountains in support of survivors of violence and trauma

By PAUL FEELY

A Reading woman is heading for the hills this weekend, ready to move mountains (or at least hike them) to raise funds needed to help women heal from the effects of violence.

While Ann Fisher is ready to take on the challenge herself, she jokes that she wouldn't mind a little help of the four-legged variety, at least when it comes to lugging her equipment.

"I wish I had a camel going with me," said Fisher, referring to the record feat achieved just last week, when a camel officially became the first dromedary to climb New Hampshire's famed Mount Washington.

This weekend Fisher, a resident of Reading and a clinical social worker with an office in Woburn, will hike through the rugged terrain of New Hampshire's White Mountains in the three-day Wilderness Heals pledge hike in support of survivors of violence and trauma. Wilderness Heals is a hike for a cause and is one of New England's most challenging all-female fundraising events.

"It's funny, I read about this hike last year in a newspaper article after it happened, and I remember thinking that it was something I would like to try," said Fisher. "I looked into it, and made sure I was part of it this year when it was scheduled."

Fisher will unite with 60 other women, to raise money for the women and families receiving services for domestic violence, mental illness, substance abuse and other forms of trauma at the Elizabeth Stone House in Boston, Mass.

"I didn't know much about the Elizabeth Stone House when I first signed up," said Fisher. "I knew a little through my work, but now that I have looked into it, I think it's a great resource for women and families. As a clinical social worker, I work with a lot of people who have come in contact with violence, and I've heard good things about the program. This is a good hike for a great cause."

Founded in 1974, the Elizabeth Stone House has been helping women and families rebuild their lives after experiencing domestic violence, mental illness, substance abuse and other forms of trauma. The Stone House provides safe shelter, advocacy, parenting classes and economic development programs. It is the only program in eastern Massachusetts that specializes in working with battered women with additional mental health and substance abuse issues.

The Elizabeth Stone House believes that violence against Agganis to S-4

MARTIN'S POND FISHING DERBY was a big hit last Saturday. The annual event attracts many people from the area. Jared Peoham, 12 years old, of North Reading caught a sunfish while below 8 year old Michael Mills and brother Kenny, 7 years old of North Reading cast away.

Movie Reviews

"BRUNO" LOTS OF LAUGHS

"BRUNO" stars Sacha Baron Cohen (of Borat fame) as a flamboyant Austrian fashion talk show host who wants to be a celebrity in America. It will be offensive to many, but that said, there are lots of laughs in this movie.

Flamboyant Austrian fashion talk show host Bruno decides that he wants to become an A-list celebrity in America, but every attempt he makes turns out badly for him.

That's the whole plot behind 'Bruno'. If it seems kind of simple, that's because it means nothing to the rest of the film. Just like in his film Borat, comedian Sacha Baron Cohen mixes reality with scripted comedy to show a look at America that most Americans will be very uncomfortable with.

He learned a lesson with Borat though - a story can really sell the stunts. And so this loosely sewn together set of gags shown in a 90-minute tale is much more entertaining than they would have been on their own as they were in his HBO program 'Da Ali G Show.'

Many may have thought he was pushing the boundary of decency with Borat, and he was, but Bruno is even more offensive, on so many levels. Whether it's the one of dozens of homosexual jokes, the African baby he adopts, the Ron Paul seduction, or the many, many full nude scenes, this movie crosses the line to the point where you wonder if the MPAA even watched it.

That being said, it is funny. Really funny. I found it hard not to laugh at the many antics and sketches. I felt bad for some of the folks, such as Ron Paul and the poor preacher he picks on. I actually was disgusted by others, such as the parents of the babies he interviews for a casting session. But regardless - I laughed at all of it. If he's good at one thing here, it's pointing a finger at how silly America's obsession with A-list celebrities really is.

Unlike Borat though, the story is not as good and the character of 'Bruno' is not as likable. Cohen and company probably upped the comedic ante a notch because they knew this and had to get fannies in the seats somehow. While Borat was just as silly, the narrative was strong enough to earn an Oscar nomination for screenplay, and this story doesn't have a chance of that happening.

On the whole, Bruno seems more contrived than Borat, boasting more obviously staged routines - but that doesn't mean you'll laugh any less.

"PUBLIC ENEMIES"
GRADE: ***

If there's any movie genre that would seem nearly impossible to reinvent, it could be the gangster film - men in hats, bank robberies, and guns firing off everywhere.

"Public Enemies" knows the territory well, and yet director Michael Mann has taken it and created something exciting and new out of it. "Enemies" is thrilling, at times shocking in its violence, but it's also unexpectedly intimate, allowing some rare glimpses into the personal lives of these historical bad boys.

Johnny Depp brings all his charisma to bear in playing bank robber John Dillinger. He's the epitome of cool, able to walk in and out of a bank, a prison, even the Chicago Police Department's own special squad investigating him without breaking a sweat. In the opening scene, Dillinger is marched into a fortress-like Midwestern prison so he can break out a few of his confederates and walk right back out again.

At the start, it seems like a charmed life; banks get knocked over easily, get-aways are clean, and there's safe houses everywhere willing to harbor a charming fugitive from the law. As the opening titles put it, the Great Depression was a "golden age of bank robbery," since a disillusioned America had lost faith with its banks and with its government, an outlaw like Dillinger became a natural folk hero.

Dillinger doesn't plan for the future because he doesn't see the need; when someone asks what he wants, he says, "Everything. Right now."

But change is coming. The FBI, led by straight-laced agent Melvin Purvis (Christian Bale) is on his tail, using the latest in investigation technology and ex-Western lawmen to patiently follow his trail. Even more damning is the growth of the Chicago mob, who hate Dillinger's mom-and-pop operation.

As the movie progresses, the getaways are less clean, and the robberies more violent. Mann stages some spectacular machine-gun battles that recall "Heat," especially a terrifying midnight FBI raid on Little Bohemia in Wisconsin in which innocent people get cut down by gunfire.

As he grows more and more desperate, watching his colleagues get gunned down around him, Dillinger's saving grace is his romance with a Chicago coat-check girl named Billie Frechette, played by Marion Cotillard. The scenes between her and Depp crackle with intensity.

"Public Enemies" is an interesting film - an action flick that teaches a bit of history along the way. In the end, you leave the theater wanting to learn more about Dillinger but still feeling thoroughly satisfied.

Mann has created a new version of Summerschool, and you should sign up for a class or two.

"TRANSFORMERS: REVENGE OF THE FALLEN"
GRADE: **

In a plot that is very similar to the first film, where the evil Decepticon forces pose a threat to the future of the entire planet, it is up to Optimus Prime and his Autobots to once again save mankind and Earth from utter destruction in this, the second film in the ponetial big-screen franchise from director Michael Bay.

This time out, Sam Witwicky (Shia LaBeouf) is starting his first year in college and just wants to be a normal student. Unfortunately, the map to the whereabouts of a device that can destroy the sun is buried in Sam's brain, which makes Sam a target for the bad guys.

LaBeouf spends most of the film in panic mode. A persecuted high school student in the first Transformers movie, Sam goes to college in the sequel. He tells Bumblebee to stay home. "I just want to be normal," Sam explains. "I can't do that with you."

Heartbreaking words for the powerful but childlike Bumblebee, but you know this Autobot who transforms into a Camaro will ignore Sam's wishes, especially if Sam is in danger. With Decepticons lurking in orbit above the Earth, danger is coming. Sam doesn't manage to attend even one complete class and college party before the new robot war begins.

The film has its problems. At two and a half hours, it is far too long of a film for this genre. Slicing 30-45 minutes would have been a good move, which could have been achieved by dumping the subplot of the President's advisor who tries to get in the way of the Autobots.

On top of that, there were several script flaws and plot holes, way too many eye-rolling, cheesy moments, and a couple of annoying twin robots that quickly get on your nerves (think Jar-Jar Binks, Star Wars fans). All of the problems with the film could have been left on the cutting room floor and the film would have been much better for it.

That said, this reviewer still had fun. The film had both a dark and ominous feel, yet was quite funny at the same time. The jokes work well for the most part, and the special effects are mind-boggling to say the least. If you are in the mood for a bigger than life Transformers movie - you are going to get what you pay for - and you'll have fun. Director Michael Bay is first and foremost an entertainer and he gets the job done again here.

"THE PROPOSAL" GRADE: **

The good news about Sandra Bullock's latest romantic comedy, The Proposal, is that it's no flop, but it's exactly the type of film she is stuck making these days - one romantic comedy after another, with varying degrees of success.

The Proposal will deliver for its core audience, the date night crowd. Most of the movie's best moments are delivered by Bullock's co-star, Ryan Reynolds as Andrew Paxton, the put-upon assistant to Margaret Tate (Bullock), a leading New York book editor who strikes fear in all around her. Bullock's character, a Canadian citizen, doesn't feel as though rules, whether they are in the workplace or in society, apply to her. Unfortunately, she learns they do in a rather harsh manner.

All those notices she's ignored from the U.S. government concerning her citizenship come back to haunt her in a big way. Notified that she's about to be deported, she blackmails Paxton into an engagement with the promise of marriage, hanging a promotion over his head as bait.

With a divorce as part of the plan, this seems like a reasonable proposition - until they visit Paxton's family in Alaska and Margaret begins to fall for

COMPROMISING, AGREEING, SUCCEEDING

PUSHING 'RESET' IN NORTH READING

"A year after the Fiscal Advisory Committee was first appointed to look at ways to close the town's structural budget deficit, Chairman Mike Prisco met with the Board of Selectmen and expressed some frustration about what he perceives as a lack of progress," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Tell us what you want," Prisco told the Selectmen. "I have to say I'm very disappointed. We have about 50 ideas and there really haven't been any implemented that I know of. I'm not trying to throw stones. But, we feel like there's no urgency and no implementation."

"Prisco said the FAC has suffered from a lack of motivation and has sustained resignations since its signature recommendation, that the town adopt a split tax rate, was rejected by the Selectmen last November."

"I'm not sure if we've done any good," he said. "The Selectmen assured Prisco they have taken many of FAC's recommendations seriously and have tried to implement them through the collective bargaining process with town unions..."

READY AND WILLING IN WINCHESTER

Winchester has "wrapped up Spring Town Meeting. Of the 14 remaining articles that went before those in attendance at the Winchester High School auditorium, 10 were passed and four were indefinitely postponed," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The budget, based on revenue estimates by the Finance Committee, was passed. The town voted and accepted the recommendation of an $81.2M budget. The town also voted on 13 other articles. They are outlined below."

Article 8 - This article asked the town to vote to appropriate money to pay her coworker. Cue the clichés.

The chemistry between the two stars is pretty good, and Bullock must be given credit for playing along its share of the Northeast Regional Vocation School budget. The school, located in Wakefield, houses students from 12 different communities. In FY10, Winchester will have seven students attending, one more than last fiscal year (09).

The town voted to appropriate $90,324 to pay the Voke School budget. On average, Winchester pays $12,903 per student, which is over a $1,000 less than Woburn pays, a fact that didn't sit too well with Winchester's neighbor when it was discussed at a previous School Committee meeting.

"Article 9 - This article asked the town to vote to appropriate money for a pumper and/or aerial ladder truck. This issue has been a bane for the Board of Selectmen, as they feel the town is wasting money on pieces of equipment that should last longer with proper care."

Selectman Roger Berman mentioned at a previous selectmen's meeting that the pumper should not to go out every time there's a call (it gets 4 mpg on diesel fuel). "The town still voted to appropriate $1.3M for the necessary purchases."

"Article 10- This article asked the town to vote to appropriate money for extra classrooms at the Muraco Elementary School."

Superintendent Bill McAlduff stated that as enrollment grows, classrooms are at a premium. Muraco has had a growth of 14 students, which, according to McAlduff, is unusually high. His projected figures for next September show a range of students from 454-471.

"The school currently has 22 classrooms, which are all full. McAlduff said they definitely need one more and maybe even a 24th. He noted that they had to order the furniture by next week so it could be ready for September."

"Originally, the cost of the project was estimated to be around $100,000. However, recently that number was altered to $121,000. At Town Meeting, McAlduff gave yet another figure, $145,669, adding in $24,000 for construction and to deal with any unknowns that might pop up."

"According to Jason Lewis, of the Finance Committee, these extra classrooms will help reduce overcrowding. The town voted to appropriate the necessary funds, $145,669."

"Article 11-This article asked the town to vote to appropriate money to the Capital Stabilization Fund in order to meet the town's obligations to finance a long-term capital improvement plan. The money will go toward funding surpluses from prior year capital appropriations. The town voted to appropriate $220,000..."

TAPPING IN, IN WILMINGTON

"Six years after nitrosodimethylamine, commonly referred to as NDMA, contamination shut down five public water wells and effectively eliminated two-thirds of the town's water supply, Wilmington is now fully connected to the MWRA as a member town," notes the "Town Crier."

"I'm extremely pleased that we are finally able to guarantee the citizens of Wilmington fresh, clean water," said State Representative Jim Miceli at a Water and Sewer Commission meeting....

"After town meeting voted to approve becoming a member town with the MWRA Rep. Miceli and the legislative delegation have worked through the state process to get the legislation to the Governor's desk quickly and get it signed."

"With all the contracts signed Wilmington is now able to take MWRA water whenever necessary."

"Michael Newhouse, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, personally thanked the Water Commission, Miceli, and the rest of the delegation for all their hard work in securing the MWRA connection."

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA QUESTION: Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Jim Konstanty distinguished himself during the 1950 World Series by doing what??

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•The sun was out on Saturday, June 27th during the First Annual Tri The Lake held on Lake Quannapowitt in Wakefield. A sold out field of 150 participants kicked off the summer with a 1 mile swim, a 13 mile bike ride, and a 3.1 mile run.

Michael Hilton of Naples, Florida was the overall male winner with a time of 1:06:05 and ROBIN MURPHY OF READING was the overall female winner with a time of 1:10:09.

•Need some help with this week's question? It was a first, of sorts.

•Freshmen catcher T.J. Larivee (Salem, MA) and pitcher Garrett Cole (Manchester, NH) look to form a dynamic partnership as they highlight UMass Lowell's highly sought after 2009-2010 incoming class announced by head coach Ken Harrington on Tuesday.

In addition to Larivee and Cole, five other freshmen will join the rising River Hawk Baseball program for the 2010 season.

UMass Lowell rode an infusion of young talent last season to a 25-20 record (15-15 in the Northeast-10 Conference, sixth), which included a dominating 12-3 campaign at home.

The River Hawks are expected to return 31 veterans for next year. Among those returning, UMass Lowell welcomes back seven starting positional players and 13 pitchers (four starters, nine relievers).

"This is an extremely talented class that addresses the needs of the program," said Harrington, who joined the River Hawks in 2004 following four seasons at Saint Anselm. "They address our catching, middle infield, power on offense—and you always want pitching. They all have a chance to start their legacy this fall and we are anxious to see what they bring to this program."

AMONG THE NEWCOMERS IS BOSTON GLOBE AND BOSTON HERALD ALL-STATE SELECTION MONTE MARROCCO JR. (WINCHESTER). He will be joined Nick Bonifiglio (Worcester, MA) out of Holy Name H.S.

A middle infielder, Marrocco, earned Middlesex League MVP honors in addition to his All-League and Eastern Mass. All-Star achievements. Marrocco also captain the Bridgeton Academy football team, earning defensive player of the year honors.

•Twenty-one members of the Holy Cross men's track and field team have been selected to the 2009 Patriot League Academic Honor Roll, as announced by the league office, including SOPHOMORE JAMES FLETCHER (WOBBURN). A total of 129 student-athletes from men's track and field teams around the league were named to the honor roll. To be eligible for the Academic Honor Roll, a student-athlete must earn a 3.20 grade-point average in the spring semester and be awarded a varsity letter in one of the Patriot League sponsored winter or spring championship sports.

•Eight UMass Lowell student-athletes - including six who earned repeat honors - were named to the Northeast-10 Conference Winter and Spring All-Academic Teams, the Conference announced recently.

Three athletes - seniors Sarah Brassard (Oxford, MA), Sharikka Finley-Moise (Lexington, MA) and Jason DeDonato (Nashua, NH), members of the track and field teams - earned the honors for the third time in their careers.

Earning their second straight plaudits were senior Stacey Lajoie (Gardner, MA) of the softball team; and JUNIORS JACQUI BARRETT (WOBBURN) and Haley Catarius (Marshfield, MA) of the track and field team.

Sophomores Angus MacDonald (Methuen, MA) and Lauren Raimondi (East Longmeadow, MA), also track and field standouts, earned the honor for the first time.

The NE-10 All-Academic Teams are made up of student-athletes, sophomores and older, who maintain at least a 3.30 cumulative grade point average and stand out on the field of play. The teams are selected by the NE-10 sports information directors.

Catarius and Barrett each moved on to the NCAA Championship in the outdoor season. Seeded 10th, Catarius earned All-American honors twice this year: in the outdoor 800 meters, placing seventh in 2:15.70; and the indoor distance medley relay (sixth, 11:57.90).

She also earned All-New England honors in the 800 (eighth, 2:16.27) and the 4X400 meter relay (fifth, 3:52.63), and was named the NE-10 Indoor Championship Most Valuable Athlete after she captured the 500 meters and 4X400 meter relay.

An exercise physiology major, Catarius sports a 3.39 in the classroom

A shot putter, Barrett also enjoyed a special year highlighted by her qualification in the NCAA championship at which she placed 15th with a throw of 43' 5.0". Previously, Barrett won the NE-10 title with a throw of 47' 4.25" and copped All-New England honors twice by placing fourth indoors (45' 2.5") and third outdoors (44' 10.75").

Barrett majors in liberal arts and has maintained a 3.51 average.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Konstanty made his first start of the season in Game 1 of the World Series, a 1-0 loss to the New York Yankees, after going 16-7 as a relief pitcher during the 1950 regular season.

"Water and Sewer Superintendent Michael Woods noted that many residents may be curious if they are actually receiving MWRA water at their homes versus water from local wells. With 126 miles of pipeline water from all the sources intermixed, homes near Woburn Street may get more MWRA water, but how the water mixes changes hour by hour depending on demand. "Woods did say that MWRA water tends to be softer than Wilmington's own, and thus if it takes a little longer to rinse out the shampoo, then that's likely MWRA water."

"The Commission did vote to ease restrictions on outdoor water use now that the MWRA membership and connection is secure..."

The Stone House specializes in working with survivors of abuse and violence who suffer from additional mental health and substance abuse problems.

Simply providing a safe space is not enough to address the origin of the struggles that afflict women and children who are survivors of abuse and trauma. The Stone House works in partnership with women to develop practical, step-by-step goals that tackle the complexity of issues that each is facing.

The Elizabeth Stone House is dedicated to providing services that are comprehensive, multi-cultural, and humanistic and respect the dignity of each individual and family. The Stone House honors independence and knows that what works for one person may not work for another. The Stone House builds on the strengths of each individual and family and celebrates milestones and accomplishments on their road to self-determination and healing.

The Elizabeth Stone House believes that by helping one another, women can overcome obstacles that may seem insurmountable to each one individually. Peer support is one of the most effective ways to make and maintain changes in individuals, families, and communities, and is the foundation of the Stone House philosophy.

The Elizabeth Stone House believes in a world where:

- All people are safe from violence and abuse within their homes and communities;
- Relationships are founded on respect and love;
- The wellbeing of women is equally recognized by all parts of society, including women themselves;
- All children truly experience what it's like to be a child in a nurturing home;
- Families have the opportunity to stay together and when they are in need, they find the resources and support systems that work for them; and
- Communities recognize and embrace empowerment and all people are free from the effects of social injustice.

Wilderness Heals brings together participants who are experienced outdoorswomen or those women who have only dreamed of waking to a mountain sunrise. Wilderness Heals encourages women to set challenging physical, emotional and financial goals. These challenges mirror the experiences of the women who come to the Elizabeth Stone House.

Women who participate in Wilderness Heals need to raise a minimum of $1,200. During the event, Wilderness Heals hikers can choose from six trail options in the Presidential Range of the White Mountains, including a backcountry camping option. Five out of the six routes offer hikers overnight accommodations in AMC huts.

Despite the rough economy, Fisher has found that people she knows have been very supportive of her efforts.

"People have been very generous," said Fisher. "Everyone who signs up for the hike has to raise a minimum of $1,200, and as of now I have raised over $3,000. I was a little nervous about the fundraising with the economy the way it is, but people have been very supportive."

cluster of bright and spacious gathering spaces that flow together. This is the main floor, but it's also the center floor.

A large basement is at the very lowest level. Secondary bedrooms and a bathroom are a half-flight up from the basement, and a half-flight down from the main floor. In the upper realms, the vaulted owners' suite is a half-flight up from the main floor, and the bayed observatory is the sunny crown jewel, set another half-flight higher.

You walk across an interestingly angled railed deck to reach the tiled entry, which is on one edge of the great room. A wide window bay brightens and expands the area to the left, while a masonry fireplace boosts the warmth and light on dark days and nights.

This large space links with the sun room and dining room at the rear, both of which are vaulted. Sliding glass doors in the dining area open onto a rear deck. A raised eating bar offers partial separation between the dining room and kitchen.

*Counters wrap around three sides of the Eagle Creek's kitchen, which connects to a rear entry with a covered porch. This may be the preferred entry on rainy days. A handy powder room is just inside the door.

In the vaulted and well-appointed owners' suite, double doors open out onto a raised deck destroying the housing market," said Marc Savitt, president of the National Association of Mortgage Brokers. "We're eliminating competition, and we all know what happens when you eliminate competition: Prices go up."

After a homebuyer and seller agree on a price, the buyer applies for a mortgage. The lender then orders an appraisal to ensure the value of the property, because if the borrower defaults the property will be sold to satisfy the debt. The appraisal fee, which can run between $250 and $500, is usually paid by the buyer.

Eagle Creek fascinates, inside and out

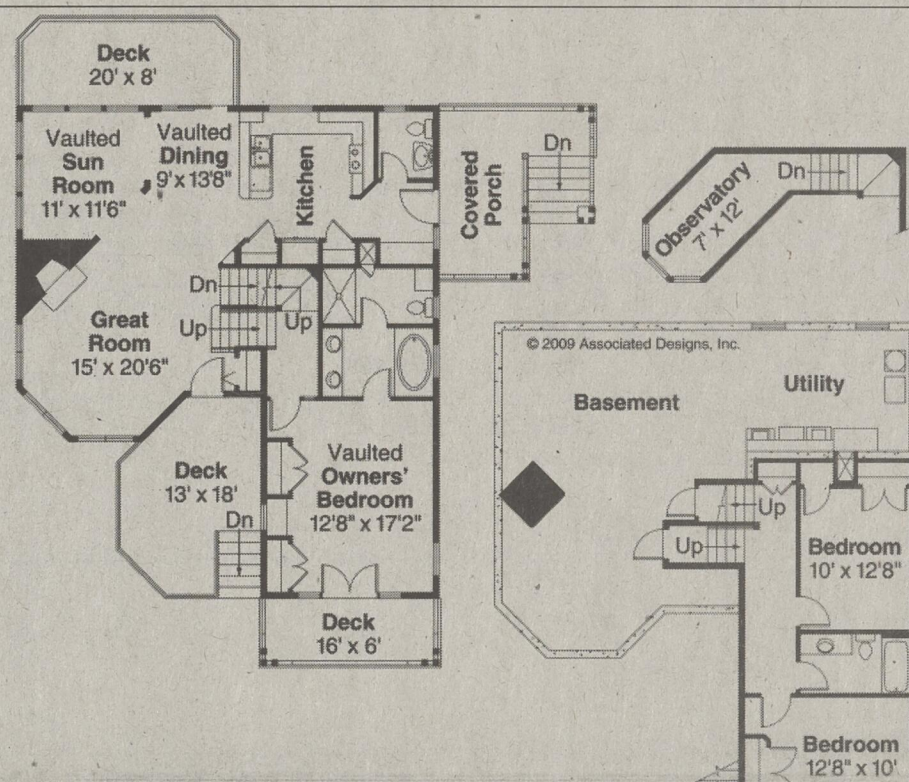

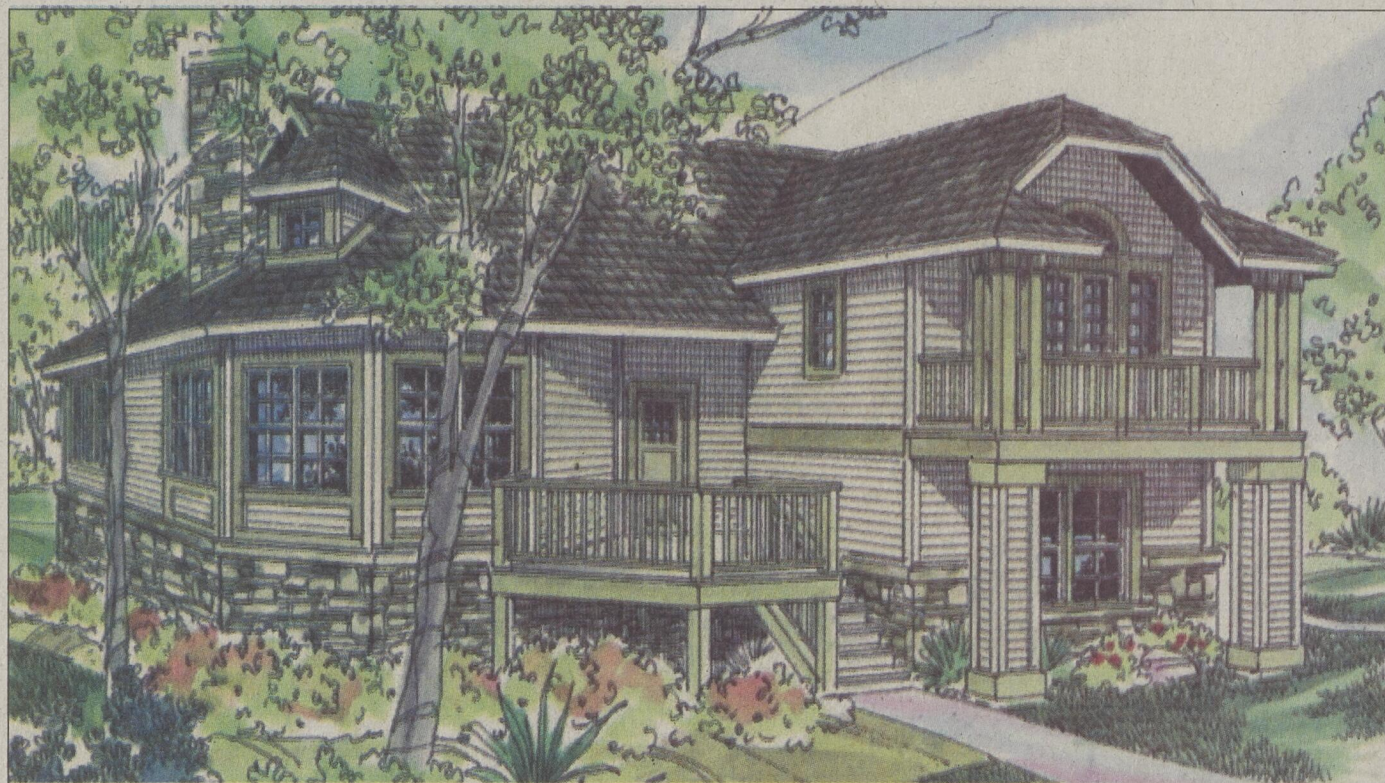

Since the Eagle Creek is a country cottage with a Cape Cod flavor, it's an equally good fit for construction as a vacation retreat or as a year-round dwelling. Either way, this home is delightfully intriguing to behold.

One of its most notable features is that it has living space on five levels. Entering, you step into a

New home appraisal rules stir industry backlash

ALEX VEIGA,
 AP Real Estate Writer

Less than three months after new rules for home appraisers kicked in, the real estate industry is in uproar.

Realtors, homebuilders, mortgage brokers and the appraisal industry itself all agree the rules are causing problems. Some are backing a bill in Congress to kill them.

The new guidelines bar mortgage brokers from ordering appraisals themselves, forcing them to do so through a mortgage lender. Lenders may order appraisals through in-house staff or appraisers hired by outside firms known as appraisal-management companies. But neither may talk to the appraisers about the value of the property they're evaluating.

Since they went into effect May 1, the rules have created a slew of unintended consequences that critics say are causing delays in closing sales, or undermining sales because botched appraisals are coming in too low.

"This thing is not only preventing the housing market from recovering, it's
